

30 Adjectives that do not come before a noun

Activity A

Feelings and states

Most adjectives can be used to qualify nouns, and we can put them directly before the noun e.g. a dangerous dog, an interesting novel. There are a number of adjectives that do not come before nouns. These generally relate to feelings or states. For example, we would not say 'He was an alone boy' but rather 'The boy was alone'. The box below contains further examples of these adjectives. Choose a suitable adjective to complete each sentence. Then check your answers in the dictionary.

Complete the sentences using one of the adjectives in the box:

afloat    addicted    afraid    alike    alive    ashamed    asleep    awake

- 1 I would love to get a pet dog but my sister is rather _____ of them.
- 2 When the nurse went to check on the patient at midnight, she found he was wide _____.
- 3 The head teacher said the students should be _____ of their appalling behaviour.
- 4 When we heard about the avalanche, we were worried that the skiers would have been killed, but the rescuers found them all _____.
- 5 She was so tired that she fell _____ as soon as she got into bed!
- 6 John and Adam aren't twins but they do look very _____.
- 7 With the waves battering the boat, it looked as if we wouldn't be able to stay _____ much longer.
- 8 I think Max is getting _____ to that computer game. He plays it all the time.

Activity B

Look at these sentences, where a different adjective is used before a noun. Look up the meanings and match them to the words in the box in Activity A:

- 1 He carried the sleeping child out of the car.
- 2 She spends all her waking hours working.
- 3 The frightened refugees huddled in the bottom of the boat.
- 4 Does he have any living relatives?
